

Program Learning Outcomes Sociology - Organizational Studies

1. Engage in critical, analytical thinking and writing.
2. Describe and analyze the connections between individuals, institutions, and social structure, which is fundamental to the sociological enterprise.
3. Discuss and synthesize the leading sociological paradigms, including the foundational work of Max Weber, Emile Durkheim, and Karl Marx.
4. Conduct original research and collect data using quantitative and qualitative methods.
5. Understand the crucial role of gender, race, class, and ethnic diversity in major American institutions, including economic, educational, political, and health care institutions.